

Stone Mountain with Monument Mother Earth by Steffen Thomas

Healing Our Humanity: Finding Hope, Love and Unity A Juried Exhibition at the Steffen Thomas Museum of Art May 6 – July 10, 2021

The Steffen Thomas Museum is inviting artists of all media and genres to apply for its annual juried exhibition

ABOUT THE EXHIBITION:

THE THEME of this year's exhibition is Healing our Humanity: Finding Hope, Love and Unity, exemplified by the following quote by our namesake, Steffen Thomas.

"The most important aspect of art is communication. I use universal themes and I try to communicate with all persons. Art is unique in that a translation is not necessary, and a genuine work of art can be more powerful than a dozen ambassadors. If we can exchange our ideas and our feelings through art, I think it will be a little more difficult for us to go shooting and dropping bombs on each other. Perhaps I am an idealist, but this is what I believe and this is the purpose of my work."

- Steffen Thomas, November, 1965 from "The Turbulent World of Steffen Thomas" by Richard Ainsworth as published in 'ATLANTA', the Official Publication of the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce.

The Blacks Shall Overcome by Steffen Thomas 1985

Ironically, the political climate and social issues we face now are not so different than those occurring when Thomas gave this interview in 1965. The turbulence of the Vietnam War and the growing Civil Rights movement had the nation on edge. Today, as then, it is difficult to predict the next chapter for our fiercely divided nation. The one thing we know is that there are wounds that need healing and that it will take a concerted effort by our citizenry to return our country to a sense of unity and love for all mankind.

Bicycle Girl – Feminist Liberation by Steffen Thomas 1965

For over sixty years, Steffen Thomas produced works grounded in the ideal that all people belong to a single family of man, without regard to race, gender, identity or any other label. Thomas often proclaimed “Families need to communicate – even families of man. It seems that not enough do.”

This show aims to compile a broad range of perspectives that tell the dynamic story of our current social climate and the path forward. We seek to feature a group of artists whose work inspires communication, healing, hope, love and unity.

ABOUT THE ARTIST

Steffen Thomas (1906 – 1990)

Steffen Thomas was born in Fürth, Germany in 1906 and had a dream from childhood of becoming an artist, specifically a sculptor. He was trained in classical sculpture at the Academy of Fine Art in Munich from 1924 – 1928, achieving Master status at the age of 21. Thomas immigrated to the US in 1928 and settled in Atlanta by 1930. Most of his professional career as an artist was centered in the Atlanta area, and he had a long career as a sculptor creating many public works of art that can be found in Atlanta and the Southeast. His last studio was in Midtown Atlanta, and after his widow Sara Douglass Thomas found it impossible to establish a studio museum on the site of the last studio, she decided to build on land owned by Steffen Thomas, Jr. in rural Morgan County, near Madison, Georgia.

Steffen Thomas Museum of Art

The Steffen Thomas Museum of Art is a single-artist museum located near Madison, Georgia dedicated to the life and art of Georgia Master artist Steffen Thomas. The Museum offers a multitude of arts outreach programs to the residents of Northeast and Middle Georgia. STMA displays a large collection of Steffen Thomas art, including sculpture, paintings, furniture and works on paper. For more information see www.steffenthomas.org

ABOUT THE JUROR

September Gray's life's work reflects her enduring passion for the arts. Following a noteworthy career in the performing arts, Gray launched a successful fine art consultancy practice wherein she was celebrated for her ability to assist corporate and private collectors with articulating and executing single acquisition and long-term collecting strategies.

Gray's career in the arts and decade as an art consultant inform her role as gallerist. An avid collector, Gray has a talent for "speaking the language" of both artist and collector and a knack for connecting the gallery's clients to works by artists whose vision and methodologies resonate with their individual tastes, complement their existing collections and honor their overall investment strategy and appetite for risk.

Gray holds a B.A. in Art History from DePaul University. A committed art education advocate, Gray serves on a number of non-profit boards and is co-founder of The Gray Foundation, an organization committed to building a world of enriched life options for youth through the promotion of art and education. Gray shares art news and collection strategies in her electronic quarterly journal, The Gray Book.

Criteria for Art Submitted for Exhibition

- Original works of art must include subject matter or themes inspired by Healing Our Humanity: Finding Hope, Love and Unity.
- Paintings must be framed or “gallery wrapped” and wired for hanging. (No saw tooth hangers.) Artist’s name and contact information must be affixed to the back of work.
- Artists may submit up to four works of art for consideration.
- Works for consideration may be already completed or be a narrative of proposed work to be completed prior to the exhibition opening.
- All submissions should include artist information form, bio, dimensions, high res images, and brief narrative describing the work’s relevancy to theme.
- Email submissions to info@steffenthomas.org prior to February 12, 2021. Please include “Healing Our Humanity” in the subject line.
- Our guest juror will choose up to 5 artists to participate.
- In an effort to control exhibition cost, each artist is encouraged to deliver and retrieve their works in person, however STMA recognizes that this is not always possible or practical. Transit method will be discussed and agreed upon with each artist prior to artist selection announcement.
- STMA Loan Forms will be distributed to selected artists via email. Loan forms must be filled out completely and include an insurance value of the artwork, description of the work, title, and artist contact information. Steffen Thomas Art Representatives, LP will provide insurance for the art in transit to and from STMA and during the length of the exhibition.
- Artists wishing to sell their works during the exhibition must indicate this on their loan form. Pricing for works will be the listed insured value indicated on the loan form. All sales will be handled by STMA staff, and a 30% commission will be taken by STMA for any work sold.
